The Journey Thus Far

When Lola and I first started creating these four-panel strips, they were never meant for a soundstage or a graphic novel shelf. They were private love letters passed across tangled bedroom blankets in Mount's Bay—quiet reminders that no matter what noise or drama exists outside, within our home and our marriage, we are safe, valued, and loved.

Over thirty episodes, this little comic strip has evolved into the visual diary of our entire adult lives.

In Season One, we took the terrifying leap across the Atlantic to California, turning nervous audition callbacks and late-night studio sessions into our first midnight single drop. In Season Two, we packed our guitars into the boot of an old car for the West Coast tour—from San Diego beaches to Big Sur redwoods and foggy San Francisco chandeliers—before flying home to the granite warmth of Carn Lowen in Cornwall to write folk songs with my sister Leah. And in Season Three, we found ourselves on soundstage film sets, walking Hollywood red carpets hand-in-hand, and eating midnight drive-thru burgers off our car dashboard in our evening gowns.

Through every mile, every guitar riff, and every camera flash, one truth has never wavered: love is not just something you feel. It is something you build, day by day, chord by chord.

This omnibus collects our first thirty episodes in their original, complete sequence.

Thank you for being part of our quiet revolution.

With all our love and all our chords,

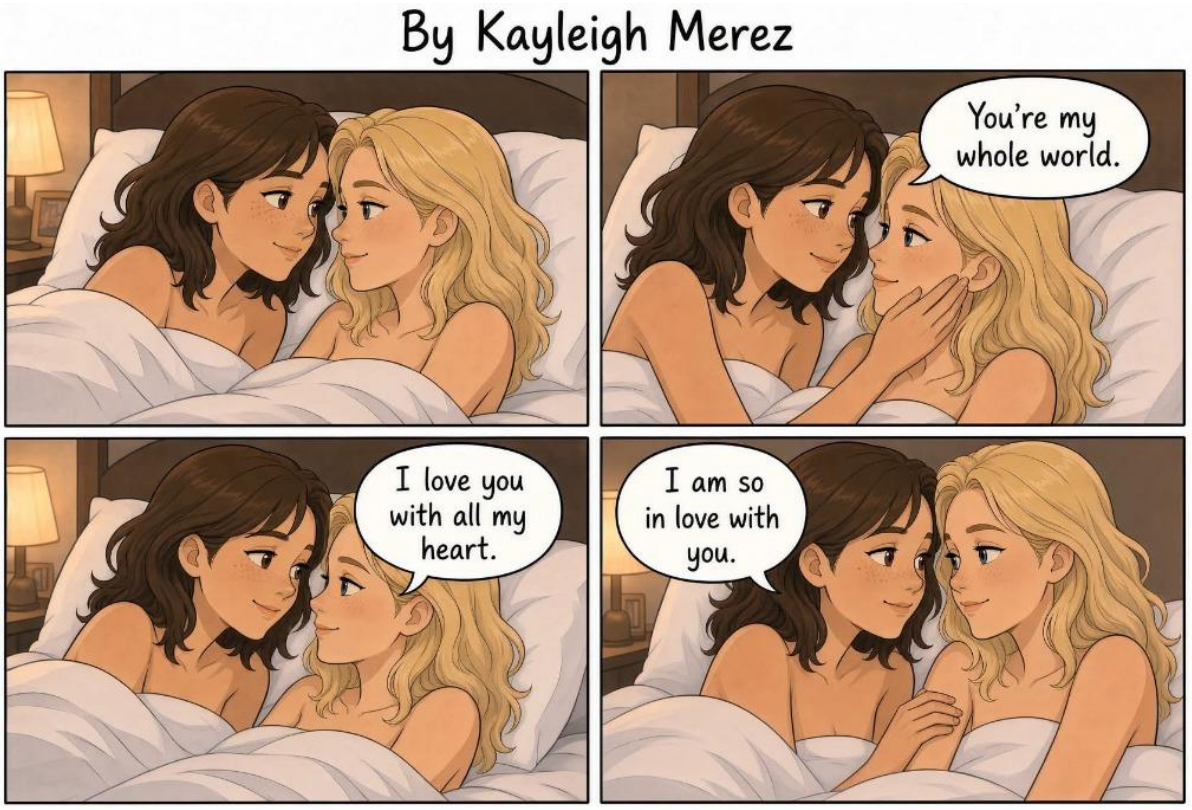

Kayleigh Merez & Lola Beatrice Merez
